Clarification of News Report

We refer to your letter dated November 15, 2017 with respect to the news article entitled "Gotianun, Gokongwei offer to spend P839B to develop Clark" posted in Inquirer.net on November 15, 2017. The article reported in part that:

"The Gotianun and Gokongwei groups have submitted a new unsolicited proposal to redevelop the Clark International Airport, committing to invest P839 billion or about four and a half times bigger than the capital outlays previously proposed to build an alternative international gateway to the metropolis.

The Filinvest Development Corp. and JG Summit Holdings consortium has appointed Changi Airports International (CAI)—part of the group that operates Singapore Changi Airport—as technical partner for this project.

In a statement yesterday, the consortium said the new proposal, which seeks to redevelop Clark through a joint-venture agreement, had been submitted to the Bases Conversion and Development Authority (BCDA) and the Department of Transportation (DOTr).

The new investment commitment is larger than the P187-billion outlay proposed when the consortium submitted its original unsolicited proposal for Clark last year. . . .

'This proposal is different from the one earlier submitted by the consortium as it does not include the construction of the second terminal building but instead proposes the long-term development of the airport into the country's second international gateway and also includes the operation and maintenance of the existing and new terminals under a joint venture with BCDA,' the Filinvest-JG Summit consortium said.

Based on the latest proposal, the consortium will build future capacity augmentation, expand airport facilities including terminals and runways, among others, as well as operate and maintain the existing and new passenger terminals.

The consortium also proposes to develop, operate and maintain the commercial assets of the Clark International Airport, which include facilities for general aviation, fixed-base operations and real estate.
